PRIZE BABIES HAPPY

Luna Park Show Laurels Go to Alexandria Infant.

"LARRY" JUDGE THE GIANT

Anacostia Wonder Carries Off the Trophy for Really Fat, Rolly-polly Youngster—Big and Small, They Are All Entered—Twins, Each Born in Different Year—Mothers Pleased.

Let the local scoffers be silent, the croakers allow their deep notes of derision to perish in an envious throat; let the rumblings of the cynics be changed to peans and praising panegyrics, for a signal honor has fallen to the town of Alexandria.

One of its youngest inhabitants, a cherubic, smiling, dimpled armful of protoplasm was awarded the prize as the prettiest baby at Luna Park yesterday, in a contest which included more than a hundred participants.

Walter Scott Moore, son of Walter Moore, of 1017 King street, Alexandria, labeled with a little pink placard bearing the number "70," was chosen from the others, and there was small question of the decision of the judges, for if there was ever a friendly, good-natured little chap, it was he.

From the opening of the show at 2 o'clock until after 5, when the judges announced their decision, he maintained his best behavior, never whimpering, as might be confessed some other cherubs did, never complaining of the heat, but dancing with the band music, disdaining to muss his white dress and pink cheeks with molasses candy, and smiling, smiling, smiling.

Rides in Prize Go-cart.

After it was all over and he found himself proudly ensconced in the prize go-cart, his joy for a moment overcame his manners, and he shrieked and yelled and clapped his hands, demanded sweetmeats and flying horses, and broadcast his adoring parents as befit the ruler of the household and the prettiest baby in the vicinity.

But there were other charming babies, dainty females with wonderful dark eyes and raven tresses, with premature coquetry, sidelong glances, and sedate carriage. There were pink gowned doll-baby children with waxen faces and Dresden china hair; there was the gingerbread variety, whose parents had allowed them to coat themselves with strange eatable substances; then, too, there were whiners and pouters and sleepers and gurglers; babies with nice white teeth and babies teething, babies with prickly heat, deluged with talcum powder, infants with dimpled knees, all kinds, all sorts, all descriptions, all white, and all with a background of maternity which held them securely in as many varieties of laps.

My, Lawrence Is the Fat Boy.

Talking of dimples, the fattest baby, Lawrence Lodge, of 128 Jackson street, Anacostia, was really fat, a rolly-polly, red-cheeked, healthy specimen, who doted on eatables, and allowed nothing to disturb his equanimity. He had the prize infants as soon as he entered the arena, and the other infant big-bellows began to get thin at the sight of him. Lawrence will be a big man; everybody admits that. The smallest baby, who would have fitted conveniently into one of "Larry's" shoes, was a pretty little mite of pink flesh, not a bit forlorn, and not a bit sorry because of her size, particularly when a solid silver naphkin ring was her reward.

She was Amy Barney, of 105 Sixth street northwest.

The cutest child was as pretty as the prettiest, but a boy baby couldn't be cute, thought the judges, and, being women, they had a soft spot for the boys, so declared the boy the prettiest, leaving the other title and a solid silver set to Gloria Gayton, of 309 C street.

Prettiest Twins, Too.

The prettiest twins were declared to be Anna and Emma Rankin, who, although they were born within half an hour of each other, did not see the light of day in the same year. Anna was born December 31, 1906, while her sister claims 1907 as her natal year. A pair of silver spoons was their reward, with their names engraved on them, though it was necessary to call on the mother, and she had to ponder awhile to give Emma Emma's and Annie Annie's.

The handsomest mother was declared to be Mrs. Edward Dick, 474 Massachusetts avenue northwest, while the youngest mother was Glenda Mimms, 1214 Seventh street, who was presented with a collar and bow tie.

The judges, to whom fell a hard and, at some periods, an unpleasant task, were Mrs. George H. Rucker, Mrs. William H. Palmer, Mrs. Edward L. Weaver, and Mrs. C. J. Goodfellow.

They performed their duties with great diplomacy and uncton, and left the show uncashed, as is proved by the fact that the other babies went home happy.

HOLMES FUNERAL ON FRIDAY

Services for Aged Washingtonian at His Late Home.

Came to Capital in 1805—John H. Brown to Be Buried—Other Deaths in the District of Columbia.

The funeral of James Holmes, a prominent business man of Washington and founder of the Holmes' bakery, who died yesterday morning at his home, First and E streets northwest, will be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock at his late residence, Rev. Dr. Kent, of the Peoples' Church, will officiate. The interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Holmes was seventy-five years old, and for the last forty-two years had been a resident of this city. Upon becoming ill three weeks ago he was removed to his country home, at Landover, Md., in the hope that the change would prove beneficial. Feeling somewhat improved, he returned to the city a little over a week ago, since which time his condition gradually became worse until the end.

Mr. Holmes was a native of Philadelphia and spent his earlier life there, being engaged in business with his father. He moved to Washington in 1865, and engaged in the grocery business, in which he continued until 1892, then opening a bakery with his son, Lewis Holmes, under the firm name of Holmes & Son.

In the early days of Washington Mr. Holmes was actively engaged in politics, and was at one time a member of the city council.

Four of his brothers, George, Thomas, John, and Alexander are residents of this city. George T. Holmes having been at one time chief of the engineers of the District of Columbia fire department.

Mr. Holmes, whose wife died in 1892, was a past master of a Masonic lodge of Chester, Pa., but had never affiliated with the Masonic organizations of this city.

Funeral of John H. Brown.
Funeral services will be held in Vaughn Chapel at 1:30 p. m. Friday over the body of John H. Brown, a veteran of the civil war and a prominent Mason, who died Monday night, at his home, 413 D street northeast. Rev. George E. Maydwell, pastor, will conduct the services. Interment will be made in Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Brown was born in Philadelphia, October 3, 1836, and came to Washington in 1890 to accept a position in the Census Bureau, which he held until the time of his death. Early in life he removed to Ohio, engaging in the trade of builder and carpenter, and at the outbreak of the civil war he enlisted in the Thirtieth Ohio Volunteers, a three-months' regiment. He was mustered out August 23, and the following month re-enlisted as a musician in the Second Ohio Volunteers. At the close of the war he went to Missouri, where he resided until he came to Washington.

Mr. Brown entered Masonic ranks in Pickway, Circleville, Ohio, as a member of Pickway Lodge, No. 23, and thereafter took a prominent part in Masonic affairs, serving at one time as eminent commander of a Missouri lodge. After coming to Washington he affiliated with Washington Centennial Lodge, No. 14, F. A. M.; Lafayette R. R. Chapter, No. 5, and Columbia Commandery, No. 2, K. T. He was also a member of Naomil Chapter, No. 3, Order of the Eastern Star, and a prominent member of Burnside Post, No. 5, G. A. R.

Grenville A. Whitaker.
The body of Grenville A. Whitaker, a statistician in the census bureau, who died Monday morning, at Jasper, Ind., will be brought to Washington to-day by his widow, Mrs. Laura Whitaker, and her son, both of whom left for Indiana upon receipt of the news of Mr. Whitaker's death.

Mr. Whitaker had been in the employ of the census bureau since the last census, and was in Indiana gathering statistics on divorce. He was taken ill last Thursday with heart disease, and died in a hotel in Jasper. Mr. Whitaker was born in Pen Yan, New York, sixty-two years ago, and was a resident of Washington many years, having formerly been engaged in business. He was a thirty-second degree Mason. He is survived by his wife and five children: Wallace A., William E., Edith Whitaker, and Mary C. Whitaker. The funeral will probably be held at the family residence, 1741 Park Road.

J. W. Panknem.
At his late residence, 24 North Capitol street, funeral services for Julius William Panknem, formerly of Charleston, S. C., will be held this morning. Mr. Panknem died Saturday, and is survived by a wife and three children.

MORE PROTESTS ON WELLS.

People Complain About Closing Drinking Places.
Protest against closing the public well on New York avenue, between Fourth and Fifth streets, was yesterday made to the Commissioners by M. L. Boss and Anna Ruppert. H. W. Butler also entered a complaint against the well on T street, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth street northwest.

A general plea for the public wells was made by Rev. J. E. Irvine. These letters will be given consideration by the Commissioners before reaching a final decision.

LEASES SIX HOUSES

G. W. U. Will Occupy Buildings on I Street N. W.

BUILT BY W. W. CORCORAN

Once Housed Diplomats—Have Interesting History—To Be Used as College Buildings—Many Other Improvements Planned by University. W. E. Dunnington Buys Realty.

The George Washington University has leased six houses on I street, west of the Arlington Hotel, in which to establish the College of Engineering, the new Division of Education, the Division of Architecture, and the Women's College. The lease was signed yesterday by President Needham. Work will begin at once on improvements and repairs.

In addition to taking possession of the I street buildings, extensive improvements will be made in the university's central building. Work on these will be undertaken as soon as contracts for new buildings can be let.

Of the newly-acquired quarters next to the Arlington, two of the buildings will be dedicated to the use of the College of Engineering; the Division of Education; the Division of Architecture; the Women's College, in addition to its educational work, the center of attraction for college women living in Washington. The Women's Alumni Association of Columbian College will have its headquarters there, and Miss Ellis, dean of the college, will make it her residence.

History of Houses.

The houses have an interesting history. They were built by the late W. W. Corcoran for the special use of diplomats living in Washington. Mr. Corcoran held that the lack of proper lodgings for foreign representatives was a direct reflection on the United States in general and on Washington in particular. Consequently, he had this row raised, and, for some years, it served the purpose the builder intended.

The university's improvement plans do not stop with the leasing of these new houses. Plans are being drawn for a one-story building, 25 by 55 feet, which will be utilized as a laboratory by the classes in mechanical engineering. The structure will be erected on the university property at Fifteenth and H streets, immediately behind the College of Political Science. It will be fully equipped with all the latest paraphernalia and appliances.

To Have Dynamo Laboratory.

In addition to this will be constructed a dynamo laboratory, 25 by 55 feet. This will be the special property of the students of electrical engineering, and likewise will be fitted out with machinery. Room is to be made for this in the present building, a rearrangement of the first-floor rooms being all that will be found necessary.

The university library is to be remodelled and enlarged. There is to be a special reading room for women, and a number of other improvements are in contemplation.

Dunnington Buys Realty.

Early & Lampton yesterday announced the sale of the property at 319 Fourteenth street northwest for Ben Bradford to William E. Dunnington, for $25,000. By deed Mr. Dunnington conveys the same property to E. J. Hulse. It is understood that this property will soon be remodeled into a business office building.

This firm also announces the sale of the property at 1717 Thirty-fifth street northwest from E. J. Hulse to J. Barton Miller, for $2,750, and that at 1719 Thirty-fifth street northwest from E. J. Hulse to I. E. Shoemaker, for $2,500.

Thomas J. Owen & Son, auctioneers, have sold the unimproved property in the John Sherman tract, fronting about 20 feet on School street, by about 100 feet deep, containing 5,280 square feet. It was bid in by R. T. Trumbull for $2,500.

Property advertised for sale by Owen & Son, on Thirty-first street northwest, between P and Q streets, that at 241 and 243 M street, that at 1661 Potomac street, and that at 429 M street northwest, was all withdrawn.

Wilson & Mayers, auctioneers, have sold the property at 145 D street southeast, at trustee's sale, to Clarence F. Donohue, for $1,600. Walter R. Wilcox was the trustee.

D. C. Phillips has taken out a permit for the construction of an addition to his residence at 1600 Twenty-first street northwest, at an estimated cost of $12,000. Hornblower & Marshall prepared the plans, and William P. Lipscomb & Co. are the builders.

A. F. Hendershott will erect a two-story frame dwelling at Fifteenth and Varnum streets northwest at a cost of $4,000. Mr. Hendershott is named in the application for the permit as the architect and builder.

E. B. Burke will erect a two-story frame dwelling at 416 Chestnut street, Anacostia, at a cost of $2,100, according to plans prepared by A. L. Fuss.

EXCURSIONS.

Many will spend the Fourth at Chevy Chase Lake. The dispatch with which it is reached, its natural attractions, and superior facilities for picnics combine to make such holidays as Independence Day great days at this resort. The Marine bandmen will be there from 2 in the afternoon until 11 o'clock at night. There will be dancing afternoon and evening.

There is usually quite a creditable display of fireworks at Chevy Chase Lake July Fourth, but no restrictions are imposed on their use. No intoxicants are dispensed on the grounds. Picnic conveniences include pure drinking water, innumerable summer houses, and ample shade.

The Fourth presents an opportunity for those who care to spend a day at the Jamestown Fair. Special celebration will mark the day, and the battle ships in the roads are to be illuminated. One may leave Washington, via the Norfolk and Washington line, at 6:30 the evening of the 3d, spend the Fourth at the exposition, and be back in town for business at 7 o'clock Friday morning. Or, if less pressed for time, leave via the day boat, at 8 a. m. the 3d, have an all-day sail, spend the Fourth seeing the fair, and return by the day steamer Friday, reaching home that evening. Day and evening boats sail daily from Seventh street wharf. Ticket offices are located at the wharf and at 745 Fourteenth street.

GIVES JULY 4 WARNING.

Dr. Woodward Advises Hasty Action in Case of Accidents.

"Injuries resulting from the celebration of the Fourth of July" is the subject of a statement yesterday issued by Dr. W. C. Woodward, health officer of the District, in which he advises immediate medical attention in the case of wounds from which tetanus is apt to develop.

While cure is difficult at best and in most cases impossible, prevention, he states, is comparatively easy.

Following a description of the tetanus bacilli, which he says are commonly found in the soil and in the ordinary dirt of streets and dwellings, and are harmless until they find their way into the tissues of the body, Dr. Woodward says: "The very moment a punctured or a lacerated wound has been received, with the possibility of tetanus infection, no matter how apparently insignificant the wound may be, an emergency has arisen of such gravity as to brook no delay and to tolerate no half-way measures."
